

Person Allowed Bond for Murder

Miller County Planter Held To Await Grand Jury

At Liberty Under Bond of $25,000 Following Hearing.

HEARING WAS BRIEF

Defense Introduced No Testimony But Self Defense Indicated.

TEXARKANA, July 6.—Lev K. Person, Garland City planter, was at liberty under $25,000 bond Friday following a hearing at which he was held to the Miller county grand jury on murder charges in connection with the killing of L. H. Simmons, special tick eradication deputy, June 26.

State's attorneys consented to an order admitting Person to bail on habeas corpus proceedings before County Judge J. J. Sewell. These proceedings took place 30 minutes after Municipal Judge Louis Josephus had remanded the defendant to the Miller county jail in custody of Sheriff Fleet Magee without bond.

The defense introduced no testimony at the hearing. Judge Josephus ruled that the evidence presented by the state gave "reasonable grounds for belief that the defendant committed the crime with which he is charged."

The state's chief witness were O. C. Smith, Pouke, and G. G. Billingsley, range riders, and Lucius E. Burge, Pouke, government range rider, who were escorting a small herd of cattle and mules from Beck's store near Garland City in the direction of Texarkana when the shooting occurred.

Say Arrest Attempt Cause. They attributed it to Simmons' attempt to arrest Person following an argument over a steer belonging to the latter which had just been dipped in what is known as "Beck's vat," and which was being taken by the agents to pasture.

The defense cross-examined them in an effort to bring out that the steer had been picked up at a point closer to a dipping vat on Person's own farm than to the Beck vat, owned by his sister; that there was pasture in the immediate vicinity which might have been used overnight; and that the riders really intended to drive the stock 17 miles to a regularly rented pasture near Webb's Dairy, two miles from Texarkana.

The riders said that if there was any pasture close at hand they might have rented, they were unaware of it. Billingsley said they had no intention of making the 17 mile drive that night if they could avoid it, and Pudge said the plan was to pasture the herd at the first available place.

Engineer Fights Return To Prison

Has Made Record As Good Citizen Since Living In State.

LITTLE ROCK, July 6.—(AP)—Governor Parnell today continued to July 10 a requisition hearing for the return of Ed Brewer to Mississippi to complete a four-year sentence for forgery.

Brewer was arrested here Thursday as he alighted from his engine on the Rock Island, for which road he has worked for the past ten years.

Brewer escaped from a Mississippi prison in 1916 after having served eight months of a four-year sentence for forgery. He had worked at several places before coming to Little Rock. His sentence resulted from a plea of guilty to a forgery charge. He had wired a bank, using his brothers' name, to send him $25,000. They sent him the money and the prosecution resulted.

Brewer's attorney announced today that an effort would be made to obtain executive clemency from Governor Bilbo, of Mississippi, saying that Brewer had an enviable record, in Arkansas.

One Street Housing 100 Incorporated As Village

ST. LOUIS, July 6.—One street, fifteen families numbering with servants less than 100 persons, five trustees and a bridge club house as town hall comprise the newest village in St. Louis County. The Village of Huntleigh, located on Denny road, was recently incorporated by the County Court to avoid the possibility of annexation by some other community. Trustees, who were appointed by the court, will call an election soon for the purpose of choosing a mayor.

L. & A. Get In On Melon Festival

Special Train From Alexandria With Band From Minden Coming.

The L. & A. railroad, as usual, gets in on this year's festival and is lending its active support in making the occasion a success.

Today W. Homer Pigg, secretary of the local chamber of commerce, is in receipt of a letter from B. S. Atkinson, senior vice-president of the road, stating the road would operate a special train from Alexandria, via Shreveport, to Hope on day of the festival, and that the Minden band would be among the musical organizations present.

Since the inception of the Watermelon Festival the L. & A. has been one among its staunchest supporters, so steadily that among festival committees their support is being taken as a matter of course. Which is by way of being a compliment paid by Hope people to an institution they regard as being their own.

Street Car Riot In New Orleans Gains Momentum

Strike Sympathizers Join With Strikers In Halting Cars.

STOP STREET CARS

City Officials Order No Further Effort To Operate Now.

NEW ORLEANS, July 6.—(AP)—Three street cars were burned in the Canal street barn early today, one being literally demolished at the foot of Canal street yesterday, and others were wrecked and practically destroyed by bricks and stones before city officials ordered that attempts to operate the cars during strike be discontinued. Police with riot guns and tear bombs tried futilely to quell the disorders but were unsuccessful. They did, however, succeed in dispersing crowds of strikers and strike sympathizers in the downtown districts.

Today police warned the strikers that they took their lives in their own hands if they attempted to force an entrance into the company's barn.

The strike, which started July 1 on the company's failure to sign a three-year wage contract with employees, has taken its toll in human life, with three dead and hundreds injured.

Talbot Feild and Charley Taylor Rabbit Hunting

A postcard this morning from Talbot Feild and Charley Taylor advises that they are chasing jack-rabbits in the Silver City, N. M., sector. Incidentally, they bring back memories of other days when they make mention of having snatched over into Juarez, which is in Old Mexico, and there inhaling a frothy, foamy, amber-colored liquid known as . . . er, . . . well, Bevo.

The trip, they say, has been entirely enjoyable so far and they're staring up a choice collection of fancy yarns to spring over to Elks Hall when they get back.

Tribute to North Carolinians who died during the three days' battle at Gettysburg in 1863 was paid with the unveiling of this beautiful bronze memorial monument at Gettysburg, Pa. Governor Max Gardner of North Carolina made the dedicatory address. The memorial was designed by Gutzon Borglum, noted sculptor, at a cost of $50,000.

Caraway Touches Up 'Hoovercrats'

Says Congress Only Set- tled Two Things—and Both Social.

WALNUT RIDGE, Ark., July 6.—(AP)—Senator T. H. Caraway, in an after-dinner talk here last night declared that Congress in the special session "had done only two things—determine where Mrs. Gann was to sit and the DePriests were to eat."

"And, the speaker added, 'between the DePriest affair and Bishop Cannon's bucket shop gambling propensities, there is not much left of the Hoovercrats.'"

Teasels "Really" In Court Action

SKANEATELES, N. Y., July 6.—They're having trouble over teasels here. For the benefit of those who have trouble with the word itself, a teasel is listed in the encyclopedia as "a plant, several feet high, having sessile, serrated leaves and prickly stems."

The Teasel Growers Cooperative Association, Inc., here recently brought action in the supreme court against Adelbert J. Foster, who failed to turn over his 1928 crop to the association for selling, as officials of the organization assert he had contracted to do. They asked that he be fined $150. Foster filed a counter claim for $1,066.10 he said was due him on his 1921 crop.

As teasels are scarce in this vicinity, and court actions about them still more rare, considerable interest was manifested in the case.

Truck Driver Has Badly Gashed Arm

Requires 14 Stitches To Close Wound Suffered When Truck Capsizes

Jack Walton, of Patmos, driving a milk truck for the Kraft-Phenix cheese factory here, missed the pearly gates by an eyelash Thursday about noon. But he didn't escape unscathed, one arm being split from wrist to elbow, the wound requiring 14 stitches to close.

It was July 4, as you may remember. Walton had made his morning rounds and delivered "whole milk to the cheese plant. At the time of the accident he was making the return trip, bringing back the empty cans or whey, whichever it was. He was in a hurry, too, wanting to join the folks who were picnicking or fishing, and maybe was hustling the hopple along.

Then it got balky and turned a somersault and when Jack climbed out from under he had a bad arm and there were milk cans and whey and auto decorating a considerable portion of the landscape.

But, luckily, the injury was not dangerous and milk from down Patmos way continues to come into the plant, though Jack is doing his driving with one hand.

Perkins Now Head of International Harvester

CHICAGO, July 6.—(AP)—Hubert P. Perkins, after 31 years with the International Harvester Co., today stepped into the presidency vacated by the resignation of Alexander Legge to become chairman of the federal farm board. His election was announced by Cyrus H. McCormack, chairman of the board.

Mr. Smith May Say A Woman Caused It All

Tom Smith of Brooklyn, like many another before him, is in trouble because of a woman. After successfully removing $5,000 worth of silk from a store, he went back to get his sweetheart three pairs of silk stockings and was caught. He is now in jail, charged with burglary.

Bank Failures In Alabama Frequent

Birmingham In Throes of Bank Failure Epidemic and Feels It.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 6.—(AP)—Two banks in the Birmingham district closed their doors today following a heavy run. The withdrawals of deposits is attributed to the closing ten days ago of another banking institution in the city.

The Woodlawn Savings bank closed its doors, announcing that funds were not available to meet demands and its affairs went into the hands of the state banking department. The South Side closed with the announcement that it would reopen Monday. Heavy withdrawals from the South Side bank followed the closing of the Woodlawn.

The Citizens Bank & Trust Co., and the Avondale bank closed were closed earlier in the week, making a total of five in the city in the past ten days.

Will Visit Farms In North County On Tour Tuesday

Second Annual Excursion Will Leave Hope Tuesday Morning.

NOON WASHINGTON

Complete Schedule of Tour Is Announced Here Today.

The itinerary of the second annual Farm Tour of Hempstead county, which will start next Tuesday morning from the Hope city hall, was completed today by county Agent Lynn Smith.

Any Hempstead county citizen may join the tour, entire families being welcome to make it an all-day picnic. The educational value of the tour will be considerable, since many of the best farms of the county will be inspected and an opportunity presented for close study of the latest farming methods. Dairying will be emphasized on this year's tour, and from what they see on farms where cows are being milked profitably it is expected that many other Hempstead county farmers will get a new view of the dairy industry.

Following is the itinerary of Tuesday's tour:

Bulldog Breed Fights Blazes

Illinois Animals Eligible To Fire Department Membership.

MACOMB, Ill., July 6.—Breeding English bulldogs as a hobby, Lewis Randolph, Macomb newspaperman, has stumbled upon a strain of "sourmugs" who should be eligible to membership in almost any fire department. They hate fire, will battle almost any flame, from a lighted match to a good-sized bonfire, and the characteristic is handed down from one generation to another.

Belying their wrinkled scowling faces, English bulldogs are exceedingly gentle and friendly, but it's a task to convince strangers of the fact, particularly when a whiff of cigaret smoke causes one to curl his lip and reveal a double row of teeth set on an "undershot" jaw. Badly, a massive red dog has on several occasions baited a cigaret or cigar from the fingers of a person petting him and his five-months-old great-grandson, also a member of the kennel at this time, shows the same disposition.

Bulldogs are inclined to be silent and a flame is about the only thing that will evoke barks and growls from Randolph's dogs. He is unable to account for the peculiarity.

Well, He Might Have Been, At That, You See

Giuseppe Porello of New York believes in witchcraft. In fact, he accused his wife of bewitching him into marrying her, also charged that she afterwards used black magic to torment him. A judge ruled that Giuseppe was loco, and granted Mrs. Porello a divorce.

Mississippi Guard Search for Killer

Dusky "September Morn" Steps Out of Frame In Magic Valley

HOT SPRINGS, July 6.—When Roberta Mitchell, aged 18, negro girl of Camden arrived here on the night of the Fourth of July, she was traveling light. In fact, she was not dressed up, and she had no place to go. She arrived in this resort absolutely "au naturel."

A kind-hearted woman who found Roberta on the street in the role of a dusky imitation of "September Morn" took her into her home, put some clothes on her, then called the police.

Now the coppers are wondering what to do with the wanderer who related a sort of "Arabian Nights" magic carpet tale of how she got here and set the officers to thinking. Roberta maintained that she went to her home in Camden after the ball game, disrobed, and presto, the next thing she knew she was in the valley of magic waters. Roberta added that she never took a drink.

The officers verified the fact that the girl was employed in Camden and are hoping that her employer will come and get her.

Cleveland Fliers Make New Record

Beat Record of Robbins and Kelly In Fort Worth By Hour.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 6.—(AP)—Holders of a new world record for endurance flying of 174:05.8, pilots Roy Mitchell and Byron Newcomb were today resting their weary bodies after a flight which began a week ago Friday and ended at 12:39:50 this morning when they brought their plane to earth at the Cleveland airport.

The weary airmen landed their plane to the roaring greeting of 75,000 persons after a flight which became more hazardous and difficult and the day marking the winning of the contest neared its end. The climax came Friday afternoon when the two men said they were nearly killed when they encountered an electrical storm which damaged their refueling plane, forcing it to land, and drove all other aerial traffic to shelter.

The fliers were immediately taken under guard to a hotel where today they are sleeping.

"Spirit of '76" Still Lives, So It Appears

Congressman Henry St. George Tucker of Virginia, 76, recently married Miss Mary Jane Williams, 60, superintending of a woman's home in Washington. Asked by a colleague whether it did not take great courage to marry at the age of 76, the congressman shot back: "It was the spirit of '76 that made the United States."

Witchcraft Has No Standing In Court

Willie Shelton, a St. Louis negro thought it great fun to take his small dog to church and make him perform various stunts in a small harness with bells on it. The minister and a judge failed to see the humor of it and Willie was fined $15.

Bond Set for Boy Who Slew Father

Youth Will Go To Industrial School To Await Trial.

PINE BLUFF, July 6.—(AP)—Circuit Judge Parham issued an order today authorizing the release of Otis Rankins, 14-year-old slayer of his father, under bond of $3,000 and the bond is expected to be made early next week.

The boys attorney states the lad will be taken to the Boys Industrial School near here as soon as he is released from the Jefferson county jail. He will be kept at the school pending the outcome of the first degree murder trial confronting him.

Relatives of the boy and attorney sought his release on bond in order that he might be transferred to the school, feeling that his companions there would be more to his liking.

Troops Ordered To Aid Sheriff's Posse In Man Hunt

Held In Jail for Murder, Man Escapes and Kills Brother-in-Law.

SEEN IN SECTION

After Escape Called At Home of Father and Starts Fight.

BOONEVILLE, Miss., July 6.—(AP)—Mississippi national guardsmen equipped with machine guns and rifles joined in the search today for DeWitt Genoa, following his escape from jail the killing July 4 of his brother-in-law, Amy Jumper.

The troops engaged in the search were picked from three companies by order of Governor Bilbo, and are commanded by officers from Jackson. They were ordered to aid Sheriff L. M. Womack and his posse in a search for the desperate man at large.

Genoa was held in jail here on a murder charge for which he was to have been tried in September. Recently he broke jail and on the night of July 4 appeared at his father's home, where a social gathering was being held, opening fire on his brother-in-law, Jumper, and killing him. He then fled to the wooded section near Booneville and has not been seen since.

Officers have been advised that Genoa is well armed, and declares he will not be captured, and poses have been instructed to take no chances with him.

Admiral Eberle Dies In Hospital

Arkansas Who Reached High Rank In Navy Is Dead.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—(AP)—Real Admiral Walter Eberle, of Fort Smith, Ark., died in a hospital here today. The death occurred at the naval hospital where the Admiral had been undergoing treatment.

Admiral Eberle had served in the navy since 1881 when he entered Annapolis naval academy. His career as a naval officer was a distinguished one, including at one time the honor of being chief of naval operations.

Admiral Eberle was born in Denton, Texas. He retired from the navy in August, 1928, at the age of 65 years, at the time of his retirement being ranking official because of seniority, and was chairman of the naval general board.

Planter Free of Peonage Charge

Jury In Federal Court Says Georgia Planter Not Guilty.

AMERICUS, Ga., July 6.—(AP)—W. D. Arnold, Sr., Webster county planter, was freed today of the charge of peonage growing out of complaints filed by employees on his plantation.

Arnold was acquitted by a jury in federal court after a trial which covered most of the week. Claud King, a white farm hand, and John Vanover, negro workman, were the government's principal witnesses, testifying that they had been whipped by negroes at Arnold's order.

Haunting 'Song of the Wife'

Newspaper Poem Causes Molly Burnham to Sacrifice Love for a Career in New Serial, "The Shining Talent"

JASH WELLS, a struggling young architect, wants Molly to marry him, but insists they wait until he makes more money.

A seemingly unimportant little poem, tucked away inside a newspaper, changed Molly Burnham's whole life. It ran like this:

A girl, she had her hope and chance—
But fate was thwarted by a glance,
A look that set her heart aflame,
So genius died, for warm desire.

Yet, still the phantom visions glow,
Although a world will never know
The Shining Talent that was dead
So soon as that bright soul was wed.

A dull and stodgy wife is she,
And dark the flame that used to be;
But always come to torture her
The dreams of things that never were.

So this is the song of the MOLLY BURNHAM, the heroine, is torn between her love for Jack and her desire for a career.

wife—
Ah, what have I done with my life?

If she hadn't read this poem, Molly, the heroine of "The Shining Talent," which begins July 10 in The Hope Star, might have married and settled down instead of becoming a nationally famous playwright and author.

Like thousands of other girls,

RED FLYNN, a newspaper reporter, urges Molly to turn her talent to the writing of crime plays and stories.

Molly found herself graduated from college and faced with the problem of making a choice between marriage and a career.

Two men represented the conflicting forces in her life. Jack Wells, a Harvard man and Molly's sweetheart, wanted her to marry him, but instead they wait until he became successful as an architect and was able to provide her with rich gifts of love.

Red Flynn, a newspaper reporter, urged Molly to follow her ambition, to write a play, to win her own way in the world.

Molly loved Jack. But that haunting poem, "The Song of the Wife," kept running through her mind.

And so Molly chose a career. She achieved an amazing success. But the world didn't know that in the hour of triumph her sweetheart refused to marry her and scorned her crime plays as cheap—that she found achievement a mockery.

Read about Molly Burnham and the two conflicting influences in her life—Jack Wells and Red Flynn—in "The Shining Talent," beginning July 11 in the Hope Star.

DANCE-MAD LUPE MAKING WHOOPEE

With the brilliant, dazzling role of a beautiful, dance-mad daughter of old Mexico to occupy her versatile talents, the scintillating Lupe Velez never had a better opportunity in any production to be "just herself" than she has in the arousing part-talking thriller,
"Wolf Song," which comes to the Sauger theatre for a two day run beginning Monday.

Featured with Gary Cooper, striking hero of "Lilac Time,"
"The Legion of the Condemned" and other famous productions; and Louis Wolheim, "hard-boiled" character actor, Miss Velez plays a part which is in effect a reincarnation of her own life. She dances and sings with the same innate fervor which brought her a part in a theatrical production in Mexico City when she was but a child and which ultimately brought her to fame on the screen.

"Yo Te Amo," which is the theme song of this flaming romance of Western frontiersmen and old Mexico in the 1840s, is a lovely vehicle for the splendid singing voice of Miss Velez. The song breathes the fervor of warm southern love and flavors the production with just the proper vocal and musical touch to make "Wolf Song" the most perfect play in which the gorgeous Miss Velez has yet appeared. She is entirely "in character"—just being herself.

Other melodies which she sings pleasingly are "Mi Amado," and "To Lola." The songs have Spanish titles but they are written and sung in English.

A. N. LAGRONE

A. N. LaGrone, aged 73, died suddenly last night at midnight at his home in Foreman, Arkansas.
He is survived by his wife;
a daughter, Mrs. Albert Atkinson, of Mena; a son, Neely LaGrone, Jr.,
of Foreman; a brother, R. M. La-
Grone, of Hope; and other relatives.

Funeral services were held this afternoon at Foreman, and tonight the body will be brought to the home of R. M. LaGrone in this city. Tomorrow, Sunday morning, at 10 o'clock, interment will be in Rose Hill cemetery, with services by Dr. F. A. Buddin, pastor of the First Methodist church.

The death of Mr. LaGrone will sincerely mourned by a host of friends. He was a substantial and influential citizen of Foreman, where for many years he had been engaged in the mercantile business.
He was a Christian gentleman of the highest type, and his passing will be a distinct loss to that community. Before going to Foreman he resided in Hope, and the believed family will have the sincere sympathy of many friends in this city.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Iris Morgan, wife of John Curtis Morgan, successful lawyer, deserts him for Bert Crawford, a family friend, whom Morgan never suspects. Nan Carroll, Morgan's secretary, is deeply in love with Morgan and saves him from utter despair by cleverly forcing him into his work. For 6 months she acts as long distance housekeeper for him, winning the love of his child, little six-year-old Curtis Morgan.

Morgan breaks the news to her that he is divorcing Iris and stressing his and Curtis' need for her, asks her to marry him. She consents. Their marital marriage has continued three months when Iris, filled by Crawford, returns.

Feigning illness, she tries to bring the bewildered Morgan to his knees. Nan, crushed, determines to fight and asks the doctor to remove Iris to a hospital. Curtis, who sees his mother daily becomes ill as a result of the forbidden sweets she gives him. He wakes up Christmas morning with an attack of appendicitis. Morgan brings Willis Todd, a former suitor of Nan's to Christmas dinner. In spite of the strained atmosphere they spend a happy Christmas. While Morgan is in the capital on business the maid telephones Nan that Iris is stripping the house of her things and is moving into a cottage across the street.

Now Go On With the Story CHAPTER XLIV

Not even Nan's quixotic conscience could succeed in troubling her seriously when she had time to consider the irresistible impulse which had made her force Iris Morgan to take her portable along with her other belongings. She could feel nothing but a fierce exultation that that reminder of Iris Morgan's beauty was gone at last.

When John Curtis Morgan's second wife returned home that last Friday in December she went from room to room of her husband's house and viewed, with stony eyes, the havoc wrought by the first wife's pillaging. The linen presses had been ruthlessly ransacked of their finest treasures. Only the plainest, most utilitarian of the sheets, towels, table clothes and napkins remained. Nan shrugged and passed on. Bric-a-brac and tapestry missing from library, drawing room and dining room; pictures gone from almost every wall; great gaps in the book shelves.

Resolutely, her emotions numbed by a cold anger, Nan forced herself to enter the big bedroom which had once been occupied by Iris and the man who was then her husband.

Nan expected to find the room denuded. Certainly Iris could claim legitimately that all its furnishings belonged to her. Vividly Nan recalled the occasion of the room's redecoration—an eighth wedding anniversary present from John Curtis Morgan to his wife. It had fallen to Nan's lot, as Morgan's secretary, to total the exorbitant bills and write checks for them. Oh, yes, the contents of this room of all rooms were certainly Iris Morgan's to do with as she pleased.

But on the threshold Nan stopped and stared, incredulously at first, then with a dawning comprehension which made her childish mouth set in a hard, cynical smile. For the room was exactly as Iris had left it nearly a year ago. The amethyst and blue-green taffeta drapes still hung at the windows; the narrow beds in inland Chinese teakwood were still dressed in their blue-green taffets spreads, as if demurely awaiting their rightful occupants.

Not even the vanity dressing table, with its rich treasure of scent bottles, jars and boxes in amethyst crystal had been touched.

"So you've left it ready for your return," Nan mentally addressed the other woman. "Clever of you, Iris. To have transplanted this room from this house to your temporary home would have been an acknowledgment of defeat. But to leave it here, waiting. Oh, yes, clever of you, Iris!" The brown head jerked up then. The red light of battle glowed in eyes that had been stony with a cold anger and contempt. "Well, Iris!" she challenged her unseen rival. "I think it about time I was clever, too!"

The result of that resolution was a conference the very next day between Nan Morgan and one of the city's most trustworthy interior decorators. Shortly after their marriage Morgan had paid his new wife the courtesy of adding her name to his in a joint checking account at the bank. Now without compunction, she prepared to draw upon it almost to the extent of its capacity, in an effort to banish the ghost of Iris Morgan from her home and his.

Late on Monday, January 7, just 24 hours before Morgan was due home from the state capital to take up the interrupted case of The State versus David Blackhull, Nan Morgan made a tour of her home and found it good. The drawing room had been repapered, so that no longer over the fireplace was there a dark square to call attention to the fact that Iris Morgan's portrait had been banished. There were new curtains and drapes in both dining room and drawing room, and in the latter a really notable collection of beautiful framed etchings, to take the place of the pictures of which Iris had robbed it.

But it was the first wife's bedroom which had undergone the most complete change. Gone were the amethyst and blue-green drapes and bed-spreads; gone the amethyst rug, the vanity dressing table with its amethyst jars and boxes; gone, too, was every piece of the Chinese teakwood furniture.

The interior decorator had spoken glowingly of the new modernistic furniture, but Nan had told him: "No, this is to be our guest room, suitable for a man and wife of any age. It must be quietly charming and utterly comfortable."

Completed, it was just that. It even looked as if it had been lived in, Nan discovered, as she studied her new guest room with quiet satisfaction. No smallest remainder here of exotic Iris. In her files at the office reposed a warehouse receipt for all the gaudy trappings and furnishings which had given place to the new.

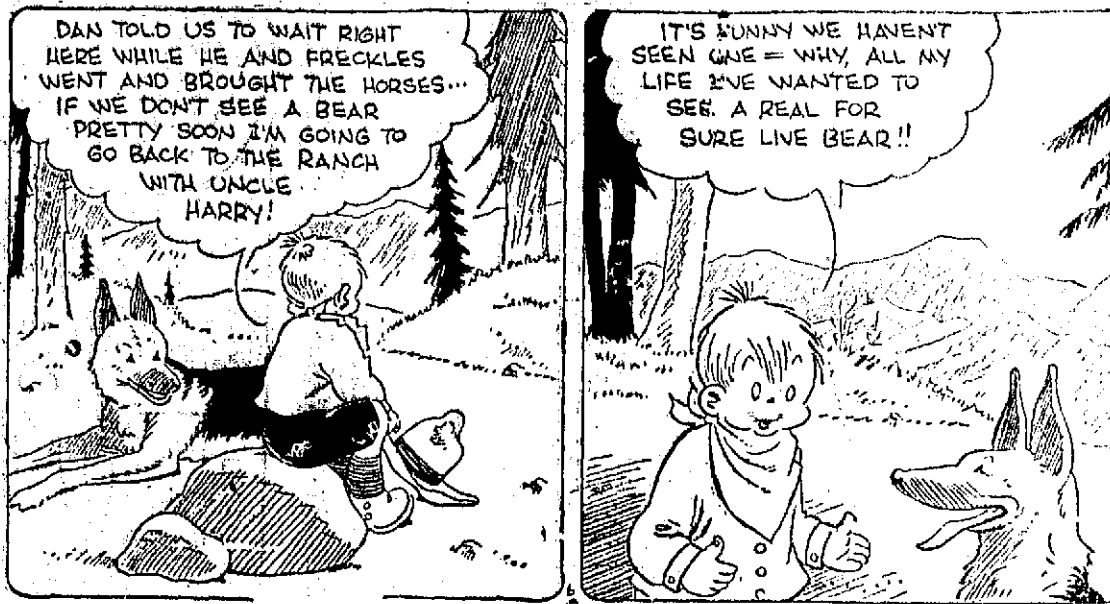

"If you win, Iris," Nan mentally promised her rival, "you may have the receipt, with my compliments to a better woman than I am."

Even as she uttered this bravado to herself, Nan knew that she was simply whistling to keep so difficult to be brave, clever and hard while John Curtis Morgan was safely away from the woman across the street. But in 24 hours he would be home again, and then—what?

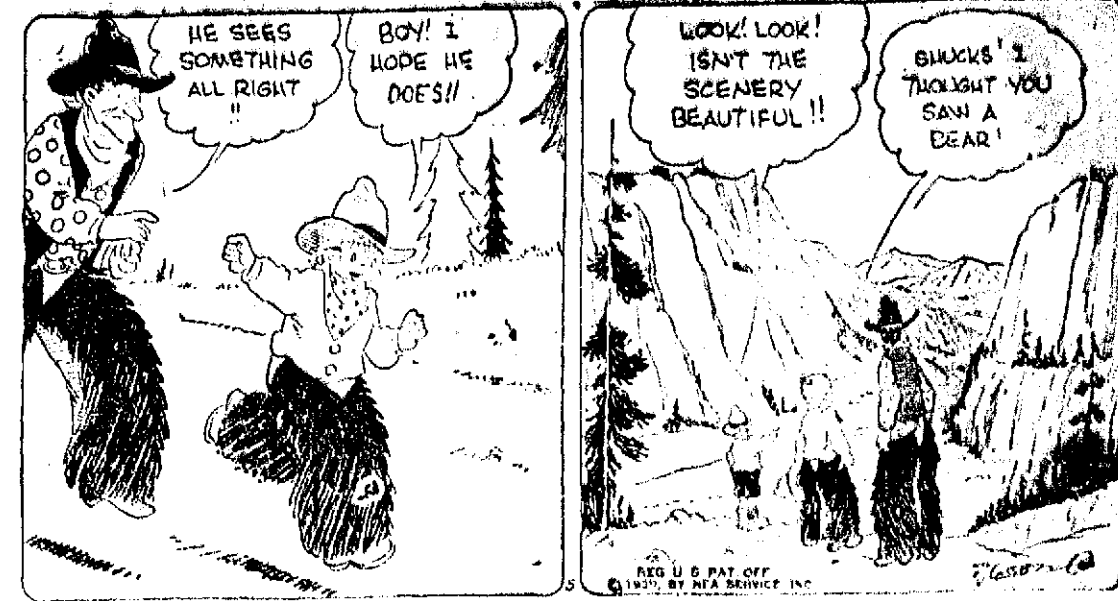

The Bradley case, which John Curtis Morgan was defending on an appeal before the state supreme court, did not go to the jury until Tuesday noon. The Blackhull case was to re-open the next day, after an adjournment due to the sudden, serious illness of the star witness, the old butler, Edgars. Nan spent the whole of Tuesday working on the Blackhull case, so that her husband could find everything in readiness for the delayed opening on Wednesday.

At half-past five his telegram came. Nan had not yet left the office. There was no need now for her to rush home to Curtis, for the child, obeying his mother's command, was spending his afternoons in the little house across the street. Nan had not dared issue a counterorder to her child to stay at home. If such an order was to be issued, it must come from the father.

She opened the telegram. "Leaving 5:10. Arrive 11:15. Lost. Please meet me John."

Lost! Nan stared at the word. How sore his heart must be! had so counted on winning this case. Lost. Not very many lines in his career as a criminal lawyer had John Curtis Morgan been forced to make that confession. Through her tears, Nan saw the very letters of the word grow giant in size. Lost. It was like a cry from her heart to his—not, "I've lost," but "I am lost." Would he not be "lost" indeed, when he came home to find Iris almost in his very house—only the width of a street between her and him? A magnet drawing, drawing, until he was lost indeed.

Nan closed her eyes for a moment, then looked at the message again. "Please meet me." Suddenly exultation swelled in her heart. He was sad and discouraged, and he was crying out to her for comfort.

When she met him at the train, his effort to be casual and philosophical over his defeat made Nan want to press his head against her breast and murmur broken little words of love and comfort.

"Well, Nan—that's that!" he said, his mouth quivering downward in the smile she knew so well. But there was no smile in his deep-set black eyes. "Guess we were about due for a tumble. Morgan & Morgan were getting too cocky. But we mustn't slip up on the Blackhull case."

Because there was so much that must be said, and which she could not yet bring herself to utter, Nan was unusually silent on the drive homeward. Morgan, glad to let her have the wheel, relaxed his eyes, but not once did he take his arm from about her shoulders.

"Here we are, dear," Nan said, when they were turning into their own driveway. "Sorry to disturb you."

"I was almost asleep he admitted, as he sprang out to open the garage.

Two or three minutes later, as they walked arm and arm along the driveway to the front of the house, Morgan exclaimed: "Well, well! I see the Panner cottage has been rented. Who are our new neighbors, Nan?"

Nan couldn't tell him—not to-night, when he was so tired and sad. While she was still struggling for words—any words rather than the truth, the necessity for answering was taken out of her hands. For the porch light of the little house across the street came on at just that moment, and out of the door stepped two figures—a man and a woman. Nan recognized the man instantly as Rufus Hubbard, a divorce lawyer. The woman, of course, was Iris Morgan. Beneath the usually brilliant porch light her beauty, enhanced by a formal evening gown, was a breath-taking revelation.

Morgan stopped stone still and stared. Nan felt his arm contract and harden until her own hand, tucked within it, was almost crushed by the pressure. He did not move or speak until Iris had called a gay good-night to her caller and vanished within the house. When Rufus Hubbard's jaunty stride had carried him to the sidewalk, the light flashed off. Then slowly, heavily, Morgan ascended the steps of his own house.

Iris' name was not mentioned between Nan and her husband that night, but it was a man with sick eyes and deep, new lines in his hag-gard face that the girl kissed her good-night just outside her own bedroom door.

The next morning Nan was not surprised to see Iris Morgan on her own porch, obviously awaiting her former husband's appearance. Brazenly, in defiance of neighbors who might witness the scene, Iris beckoned to Morgan imperiously. He paused uncertainly on the step, his hand tightening convulsively upon Nan's shoulder; then, as her eyes lifted to meet his, they encountered such a tragic, humble plea for guidance or permission, perhaps, that she nodded mutely.

She was about to turn back into the house, as Morgan started across the street, when the thought of the neighbors whom Iris scorned to consider stopped her. If any community gossip was watching from behind a curtain, let her also report that John Curtis Morgan's wife had sanctioned that interview to take place across the street. As she forced herself to look on, she was rewarded for the effort it cost her to stay by seeing Morgan firmly and definitely refuse his former wife's invitation to enter the house. Whatever was said between them—and the interview was brief, due obviously to Morgan's impatience to be gone—was said on the porch. Faintly across the street came the tremulous cadences of Iris' voice.

After a few minutes the man turned his back upon that voice and its passionate pleas; turned toward the little figure waiting, erect and smiling.

"Goodbye again, Nan—and thank you," he said in a low voice. "I'll put this house on the market today, but there is no need for us to wait until it is sold. We can be quite comfortable at a hotel for a few days, until we find a suitable house."

Relief so exquisite that it squeezed happy tears out of her eyes swept over Nan's heart. He had not failed her, God bless him! Now she must not fail him.

"What? Sell this place, when I've just had so much fun redecorating? Not if I have anything to say about it, John!" Her voice was gaily indignant, but her steady eyes said something very different: "We mustn't run, John. We can't win this fight by running away from it."

And it was what her eyes said that he answered. "Thank you, Nan." Then, not looking at her "I have given my permission, Nan for Curtis to visit his—mother every afternoon. I—could not refuse. He is—all she has left."

"I have not kept him from her," Nan answered evenly.

"I know," he agreed quickly. "And—thank you again, Nan. Now I've got to make a dash for the courthouse. We're lunching together, aren't we? Fine! Goodbye, dear, and—don't worry!"

During the week that followed Nan had many occasions to recall his future advice, "Don't Worry!" and every time she remembered, her lips twisted in that new, cynical bitter smile that set so oddly upon their young softness.

4-H COTTON AND CORN CLUB WORK

According to County Agent, Lynn L. Smith, 44 4-H Club boys have entered the Chilean Nitrate one acre cotton contest and 21 4-H club boys have entered the Chilean Nitrate one acre corn contest. These boys are using fertilizers based on recommendations of the Arkansas Agricultural Extension Service. For cotton in the bottom land section, each boy uses 200 pounds Chilean Nitrate per acre; in the upland section he uses 300 pounds acid phosphate, 200 pounds Chilean Nitrate and 60 pounds muriate of potash per acre. For corn, the minimum requirement is 100 pounds Chilean Nitrate per acre as side-dressing when the corn is about knee high. Each 4-H club member is keeping a record so that when harvest time comes there will be no guessing as to the yields or the cost of making them. If 15 4-H club members finish in each of the contests, the corn winner and the cotton winner in Hempstead county will each receive a nice Elgin gold watch as a prize. The state winner in each contest will receive an education trip. Van Jones of Fulton, Arkansas, won the watch last year in the 4-H cotton club contest by producing 655 pounds lint on one acre. Farmers are urged to check up on these 4-H club members, see what they are doing and whether the methods used by them are profitable.

PERSONAL MENTION

Mrs. Floyd Steed left yesterday for a week-end visit with Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Steed at Little Rock.

Mrs. Jefferson Davis, of El Dorado, is in the city for a few days, the guest of Miss Vivian Luck at her home on North Hervey. Mrs. Davis arrived yesterday, accompanied by her husband, the latter leaving this morning for Little Rock where he will join Governor Farnell on a fishing trip.

Mrs. Audrey Young, chief operator at the White Way Beauty Shop is away for a few days, taking a special course in beauty culture and permanent waving under Prof. Edwin C. Emory at Hot Springs.

Ben C. Southward, proprietor of the White Way Barber and White Way Beauty shops, is home from a week-end in Hot Springs where he went to take a post-graduate course in Eugene waving and Marcelline beauty culture. The school in the Spa this week was conducted by Prof. Edwin C. Emory, accredited representative of the Eugene wave machine manufacturers. Prof. Emory will be here on a tour of inspection next week, visiting beauty shops throughout the state, and will be Mr. Southward's guest while in the city.

Six Victims of Detroit Ax Murderer

Here are Paul Evangelist, said to have been the near of an Italian notorious gun in Detroit, and his wife and four children who were brutally slain by an ax man as they slept. Evangelist is shown in the left with his oldest daughter, Angelina, while below them are Jeanne and Margaret. At the right is Anna, Satine Evangelist, the wife, holding Anna, their youngest child. The picture below shows Detroit police removing the bodies to ambulance shortly after the murder was discovered.

Attendants At Negro School Appreciative

Reaching the women's opportunity afforded in the great crowd that came from the reservation of the summer school of Hope coming to a close, the direct and indirect efforts of our most esteemed institution and its teachers, E. L. Rogers, and State Department of Education for the purpose of providing a better standard and more efficient work in the intellectual and moral life of our people, the attendance and the results of the summer school are appreciated by the community. The people are to be congratulated for their efforts in providing a better standard and more efficient work in the intellectual and moral life of our people, the attendance and the results of the summer school are appreciated by the community.

Resolving further, that a strong and efficient faculty has been selected to our county superintendent, Prof. Rogers, in the person of Prof. Rogers, W. L. McMillan, T. L. Hamilton, Misses Williams, Lammason, Rogers and Lammason, coming as they do from the leading schools, colleges and universities of our nation and whose work stands prominently.

The work of the summer school has won the respect, appreciation and endorsement of the best element of Hope, the community, which has been expressed in the satisfaction of this body, therefore is:

Resolved, That in expression of our appreciation to the faculty, we do hereby commend Prof. Rogers and his co-workers who have with dignity, impartiality and marked ability, tactfully and effectively performed their duty in their effort to make better the teaching force of our country.

Resolved, second, That we express our thanks and appreciation to the citizens of Hope, white and colored, for making our year more pleasant and comfortable, and for every way and means to move and sympathize that have come in during the session of the summer school.

Resolved, further, That we tender our sincere thanks to the managers of the Saenger Theatre for the kindness shown in giving us free admission to the most excellent exhibitions when we so much enjoyed, and wish to assume all concerned of our highest appreciation of the same.

Be it further resolved, That we make special mention of the most elaborate banquet given in honor of the summer school in the big banquet hall of Hope, and extend to them our hearty appreciation and thanks for the same and wish we could bring them in our memory.

We wish further to commend Prof. Rogers for his wisdom in the management of the summer school, and our members of the faculty for the efficient work done in each department which has meant so much to us. He and his faculty have come before us as ever, ready to fill our empty vessels as we come to them daily to receive that phase of education that will enable us to return to our several fields and better solve the many problems that will confront us.

Tank "Crawls" at 40 Miles an Hour

Here you see the world's speediest "caterpillar" in action. It is a new type of armored combat tank, fastest and most effective, "crawling" at 40 miles an hour in a field at the heretofore unheard of speed of 10 miles an hour in a successful demonstration before government officials at Fort Meade, Md. The tank, which can be converted into a standard machine for use on highways in 4 minutes, attained a high speed of 40 miles per hour on its road tests.

Respectfully submitted in behalf of the members of the colored Summer School of Hope, T. Hindman, E. D. McCree, Lena R. Eddington, Rosa Nelson, committee.

AMARILLO, Tex., July 5.—If it weren't for the bootleggers the orphans of the Presbyterian Home here wouldn't be eating sugar on their oatmeal.

One thousand pounds of sugar were confiscated by federal agents in this vicinity. The sugar was to have been used to make "sugar moon." But the officers confiscated the powerful beverage in its embryonic state, still being in sacks.

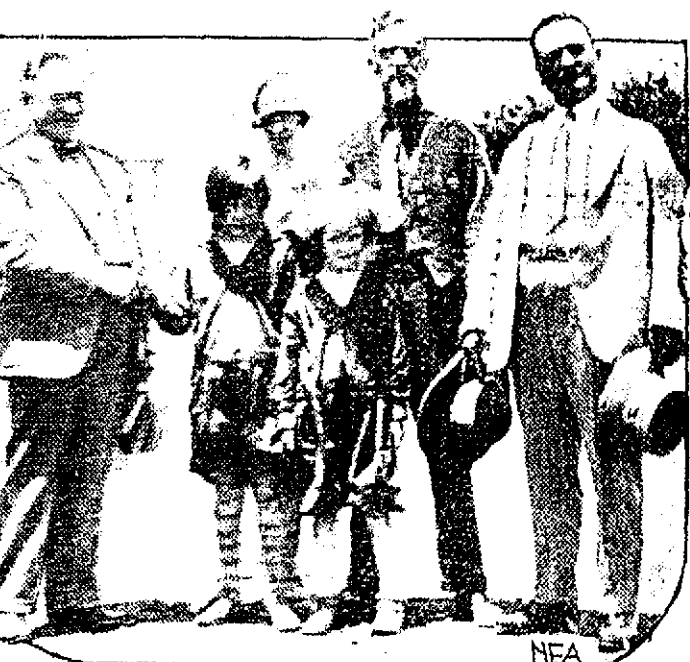

But what to do with the sugar remained a puzzle. It couldn't be sold legally. To destroy it, as the law specifies, would be gross waste of the man-made waste. Finally some official remembered the orphans.

Yvonne, the manager of the Saenger Theatre of Hope has so much to offer us by granting free admission to the most excellent and instructive exhibitions rendered by our very best and much enjoyed, therefore:

Resolved, That we tender our sincere thanks and wish to assume all concerned of our highest appreciation of the same.

Resolved, further, That a copy of this resolution be sent to the managers of the Saenger Theatre.

Jack Dalton and His Bride

Members of 60 years ago when the notorious Dalton brothers and their outlaw band terrorized the southwest were revived when Jack Dalton, 60, nephew of Emmett Dalton, the sole survivor of the band, married a young girl, "Annie" Burke in an airplane ceremony above Annapolis, N. M. Jack Dalton said he was not a member of the group but that he was a childhood sweetheart, the "Annie Burke" who was carried off to the Dalton brothers while they were being shot. Buried in the clouds, the Daltons, and Mayor C. L. Tingley and the two children of Mrs. Dalton by a former marriage.

Queerest Animal of Rockies Friendliest To Human Beings

GLACIER PARK, Mont., July 5.—Of all the animals of the Rockies, the queerest animal of the Rockies according to Jim Walt, veteran of the Glacier Park guides, also is the friendliest to man.

"When traveling through Glacier Park," Walt says, "most tourists are searching the mountains for sheep and goat or else looking for deer or bear in the lower country, but there is one other animal that I think is the most interesting of the Park and it is very few of the visitors. The animal is the rock chovy, no larger than a small ground squirrel yet he is the funniest animal I have ever seen. He lives about timber line and when you are seated on a rock ledge you will hear a faint cry or squeal and you really wonder where it came from but just keep perfectly still and watch you will be rewarded. Presently you will see him busily cutting grass with his little chisel teeth, or else when his mouth is full of it, trying to get it under some sheltering rock where it will cure and later be taken to his den for him to feed on through the long cold winter. If you will sit in your seat and wait you will see him, and you will be rewarded.
